One word picks the type

`typography:` chooses the heading and body faces, the eyebrow and the chart text together.

This slide is `classic`, the default.

Playfair Display over Outfit

- The eyebrow above now speaks in the heading face's italic, not the header's mono capitals
- The header, meta line, footer and page number keep their mono voice, so they read as the frame
- Every deck that names no set gets this look; its faces are unchanged

Ledger · reports, government, academic

Newsreader over Inter

- Inter body is set 0.87×, so the x-height a reader sees holds; a heading's size is capped so it never wraps where Playfair fit
- `preset: editorial` carries this set; an explicit `typography:` still wins
- Newsreader has tabular figures, so it also sets the chart's data labels

Ledger · a chart

Enterprise is now half the business

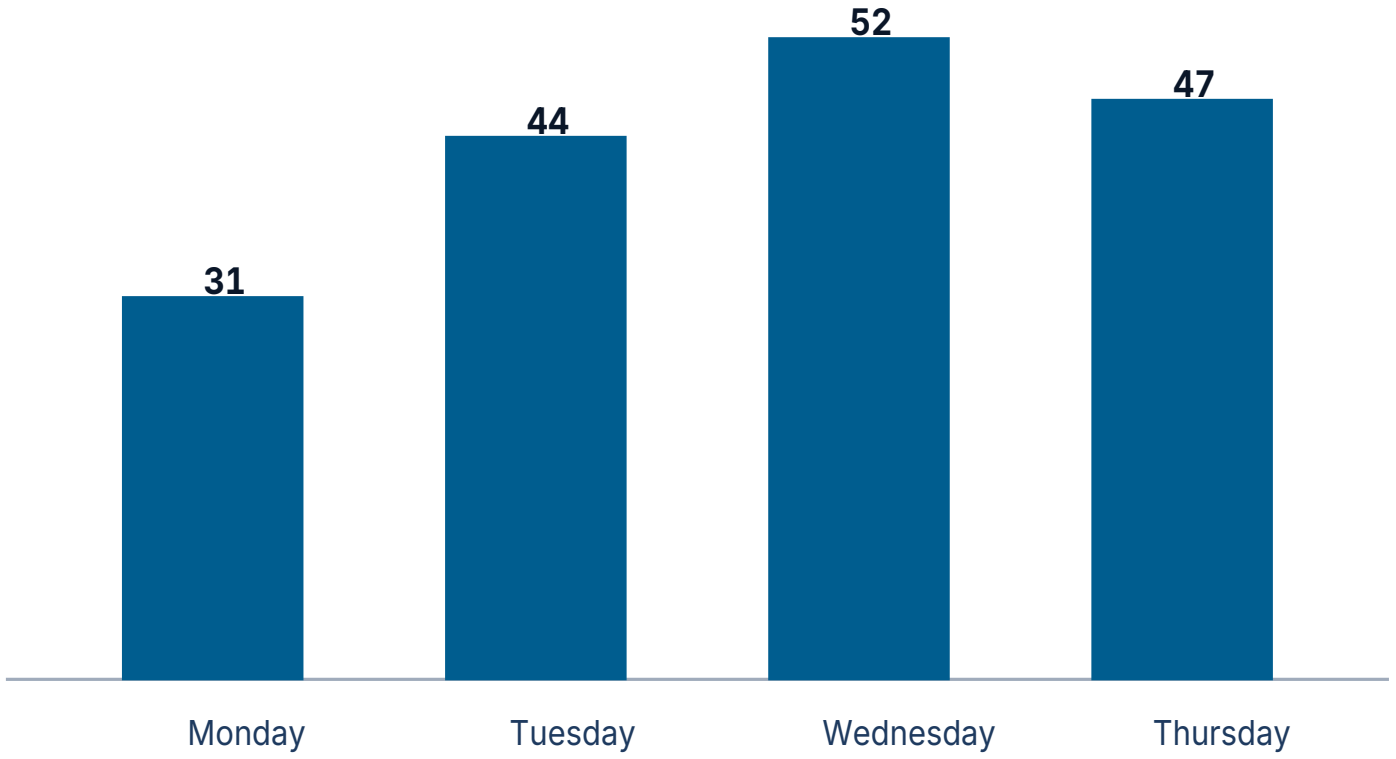

Poster · launches, sales, brand

Fraunces over Inter

- The warmest of the four; Fraunces has no tabular figures, so chart data labels stay in Inter
- The quote credit before this slide is in tracked capitals, in every set
- `mode: sketch` keeps its own hand type whatever set a deck names
