Rename the callout

The Key Insight panel and the split-compare verdict share one label seam. Default wording stays; an `insight-*` modifier on the slide `_class` swaps the word to a curated boardroom heading.

The default stays KEY INSIGHT.

Any trailing blockquote on a content slide renders as the accent panel with its familiar eyebrow. Nothing changes unless you ask for it.

- Migration is opt-in — every existing deck renders identically.
- The label word is the only thing a modifier touches.

> The seam is invisible until you reach for it.

Same panel, read as a TAKEAWAY.

When the callout is what the audience should walk away with, name it so.

- The panel chrome, color, and sizing are untouched.
- Only the eyebrow word changes.

TAKEAWAY

Lead with the takeaway; let the body earn it.

A board slide closes with THE ASK.

The curated set covers the words a decision slide actually needs.

- `insight-so-what` — SO WHAT
- `insight-bottom-line` — BOTTOM LINE
- `insight-verdict` — VERDICT

THE ASK

Approve the Series B bridge at the March board meeting.

DECISION REQUIRED

Build the pipeline, or buy it?

The verdict card defaults to RECOMMENDATION — no modifier needed.

BUILD IN-HOUSE

- Full control of the roadmap
- Two engineer-quarters before first value

BUY THE MANAGED PLATFORM

- Live in three weeks
- Roadmap set by the vendor

RECOMMENDATION

Buy now to unblock Q3; revisit build at renewal.

DECISION REQUIRED

The same modifier renames the verdict card.

`insight-verdict` sets `--insight-label` for both surfaces — the recommendation is a Key Insight variant, not a split-compare special.

SHIP THE REDESIGN NOW

- Beats the competitor announcement
- Two known regressions still open

HOLD ONE SPRINT

- Regressions closed first
- Cedes the first-mover window

VERDICT

Ship now; patch the regressions in the first point release.

An analyst deck signs with OUR VIEW.

The vocabulary grew with the words a board or analyst slide reaches for.

- `insight-implication` — IMPLICATION
- `insight-next-step` — NEXT STEP
- `insight-why` — WHY IT MATTERS

OUR VIEW

The re-rate is priced in; the surprise is the margin path, not the top line.

One seam, one vocabulary

Set `--insight-label` per slide via a modifier, or deck-wide via a frontmatter `class:`. Defaults never move; the word is a curated choice.
