The image layout reads the asset’s shape.

Two-thirds of trials that reach the first generated report convert to paid; the ones that stall at workspace setup almost never do. Hand the layout any photo — it resolves the composition from the asset's shape.

The rotor spins inside its fixed housing.

The poster freezes the hero frame; on screen the rotor turns and a bead traces its ring.

STATEMENT · SPLIT-PANEL

The featured panel makes the claim; this side supports it.

A dark left panel carries the headline, and the bright right column holds up to three supporting items.

Two zones, one argument

The split is hierarchy, not decoration — the panel claims, the column proves.

Three items is the comfort zone

A short title and one supporting line each, like this.

Prose stays on a budget

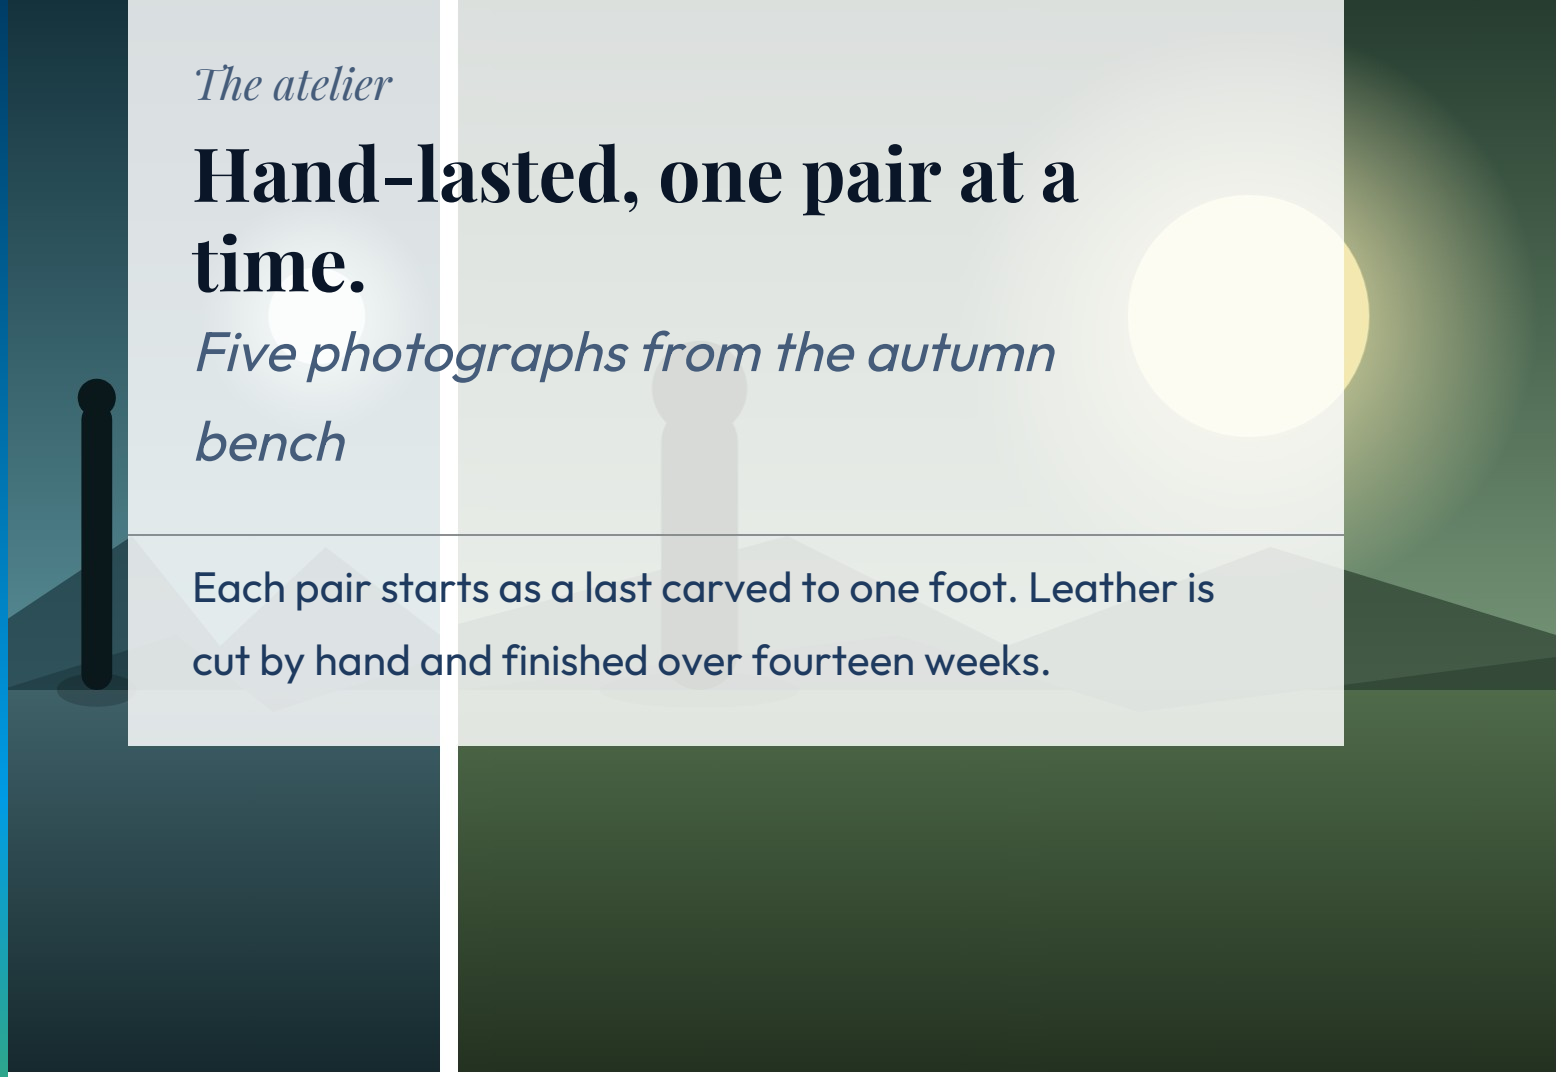

Sixteen words per item keeps the column scannable.

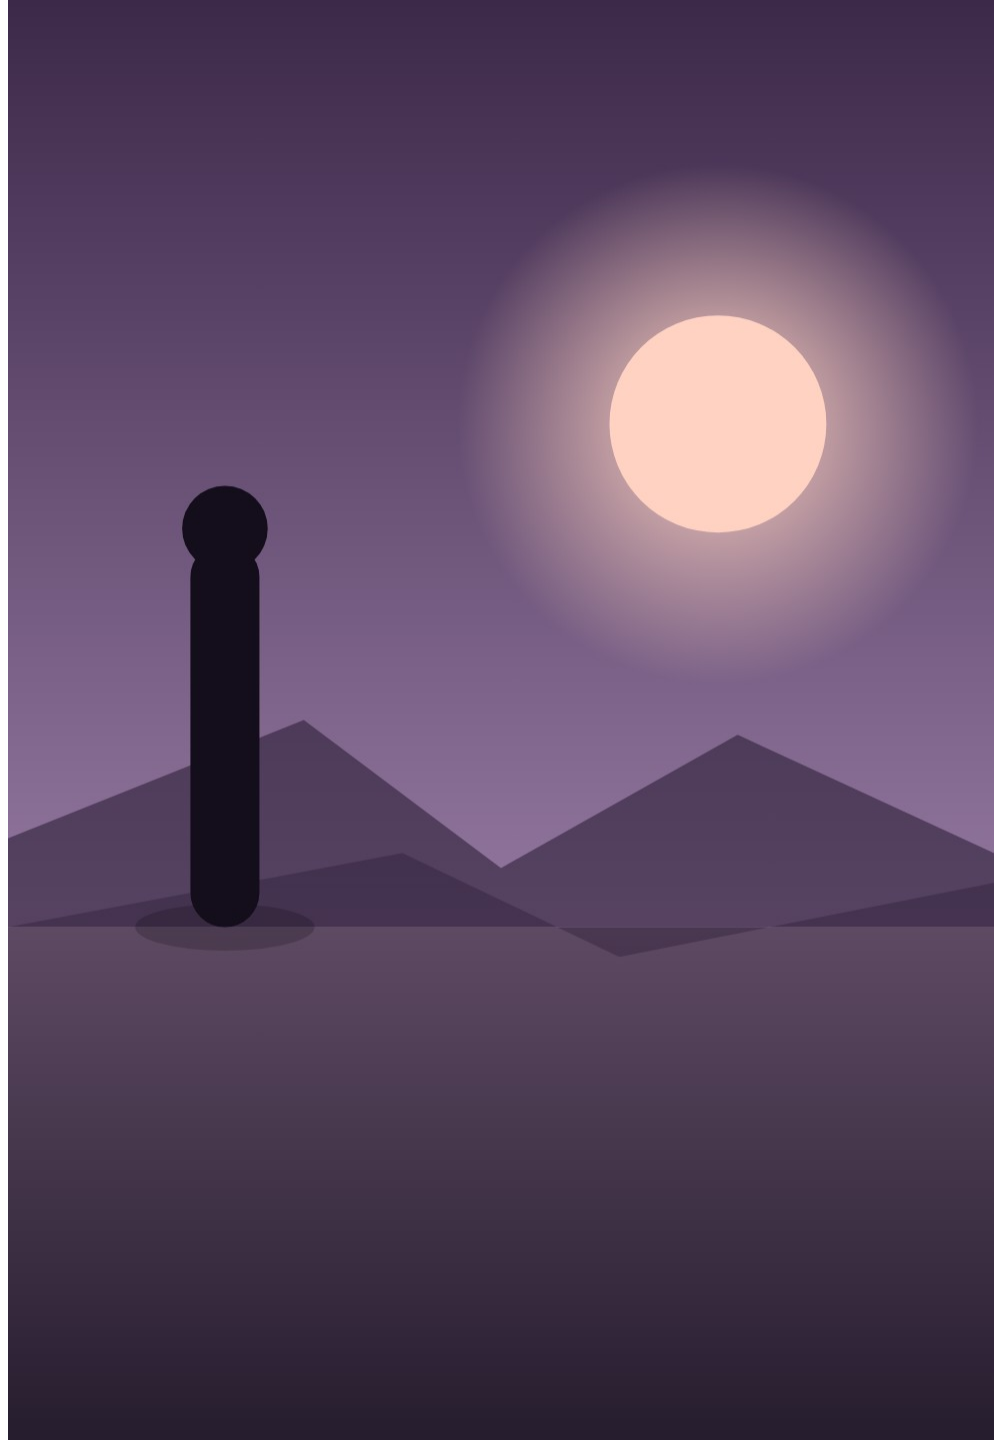

The atelier

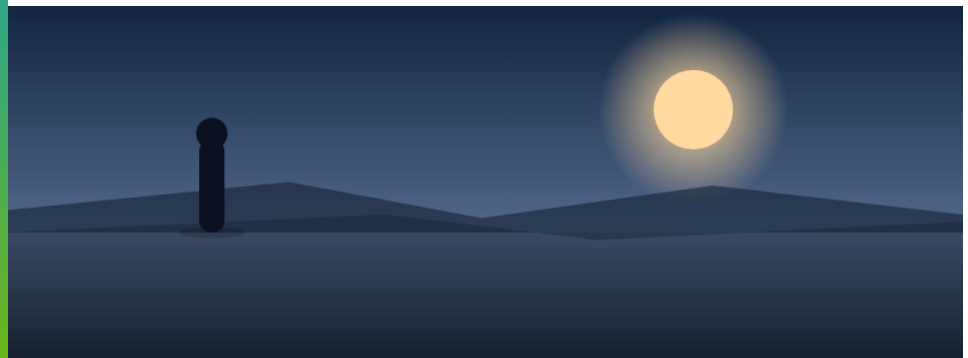

Hand-lasted, one pair at a time.

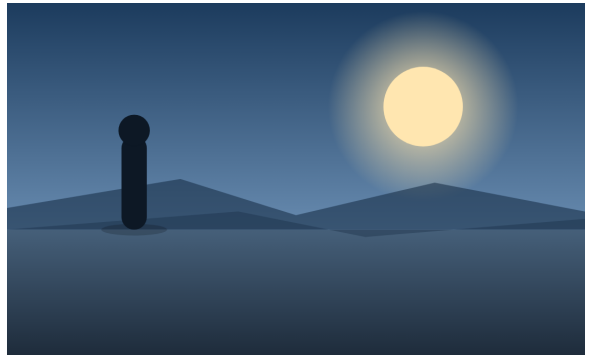

Five photographs from the autumn bench

Each pair starts as a last carved to one foot. Leather is cut by hand and finished over fourteen weeks.

LATTICE · FULL-BLEED BAR

COMPARISON · SPLIT-COMPARE

The dark panel asks; the grid answers.

One question on the left; two option cards and a verdict on the right.

OPTION A

- Three short rows state the case
- Rows stay parallel across cards

OPTION B

- The grid begs comparison
- Mismatched rows read as bias

RECOMMENDATION

The verdict card lands last: one recommendation, one revisit date.

Pick the side by brand, not by layout

We recommend choosing where the bar sits for the deck as a whole. Full-bleed slides carry it over the art without moving anything.