Title · owns its top edge

The spectrum bar owns its edge.

Change the edge and watch the slides below.

Content · header, footer, page number

A plain slide keeps every margin.

- The heading holds still
  - Whatever side the bar takes
- The header, footer and page number hold still
  - They sit inside the frame the bar draws

DRAFT

Draft stamp · corner tab

The tab hangs inside the frame.

- Top right, one bar width in
  - Never under a right bar

CONFIDENTIAL

Confidential · ribbon

A ribbon stamp stays clear of the bar.

- Same corner, different shape
  - The bar never covers a word

CONFIDENTIAL

Confidential · full-slide wash

A wash lies under the bar.

- Full-slide stamps run edge to edge
  - The bar paints above them

WIP

Dark · work in progress stamp

Dark slides sit where light ones do.

- Same heading position as the light slide
  - A deck that mixes both never steps

Accent · its own top stripe

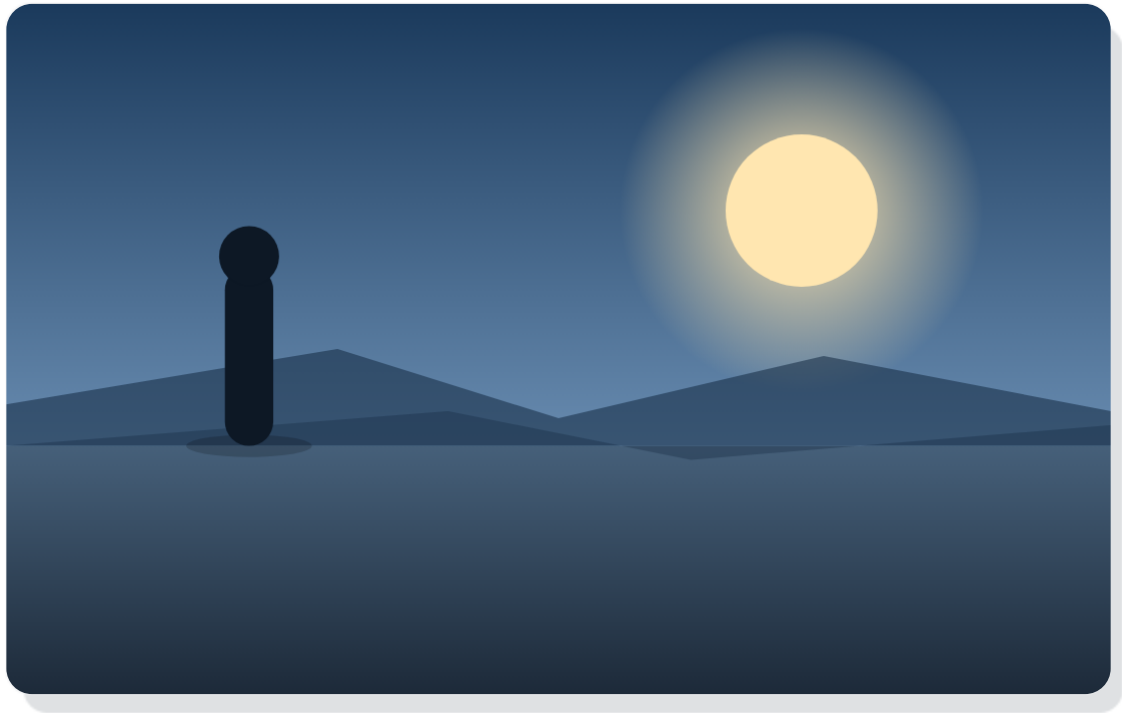

The accent stripe is the slide's choice.

- It stays on top, whatever side the bar takes
  - Content holds still under it

Image · full bleed, overlay bar

The photo reaches the true edge.

The bar lies over the photo and takes no room from it.

SPLIT PANEL · THE PANEL CLAIMS

Panels run to the edge; the bar lies over them.

Two zones, one argument

The bar crosses both without a seam

The panel never narrows

Under any side

SPLIT COMPARE, DARK PANEL

A dark panel and two option cards.

One sentence of context sits under the headline.

OPTION A

- First supporting fact
- Second supporting fact

OPTION B

- First supporting fact
- Second supporting fact

RECOMMENDATION

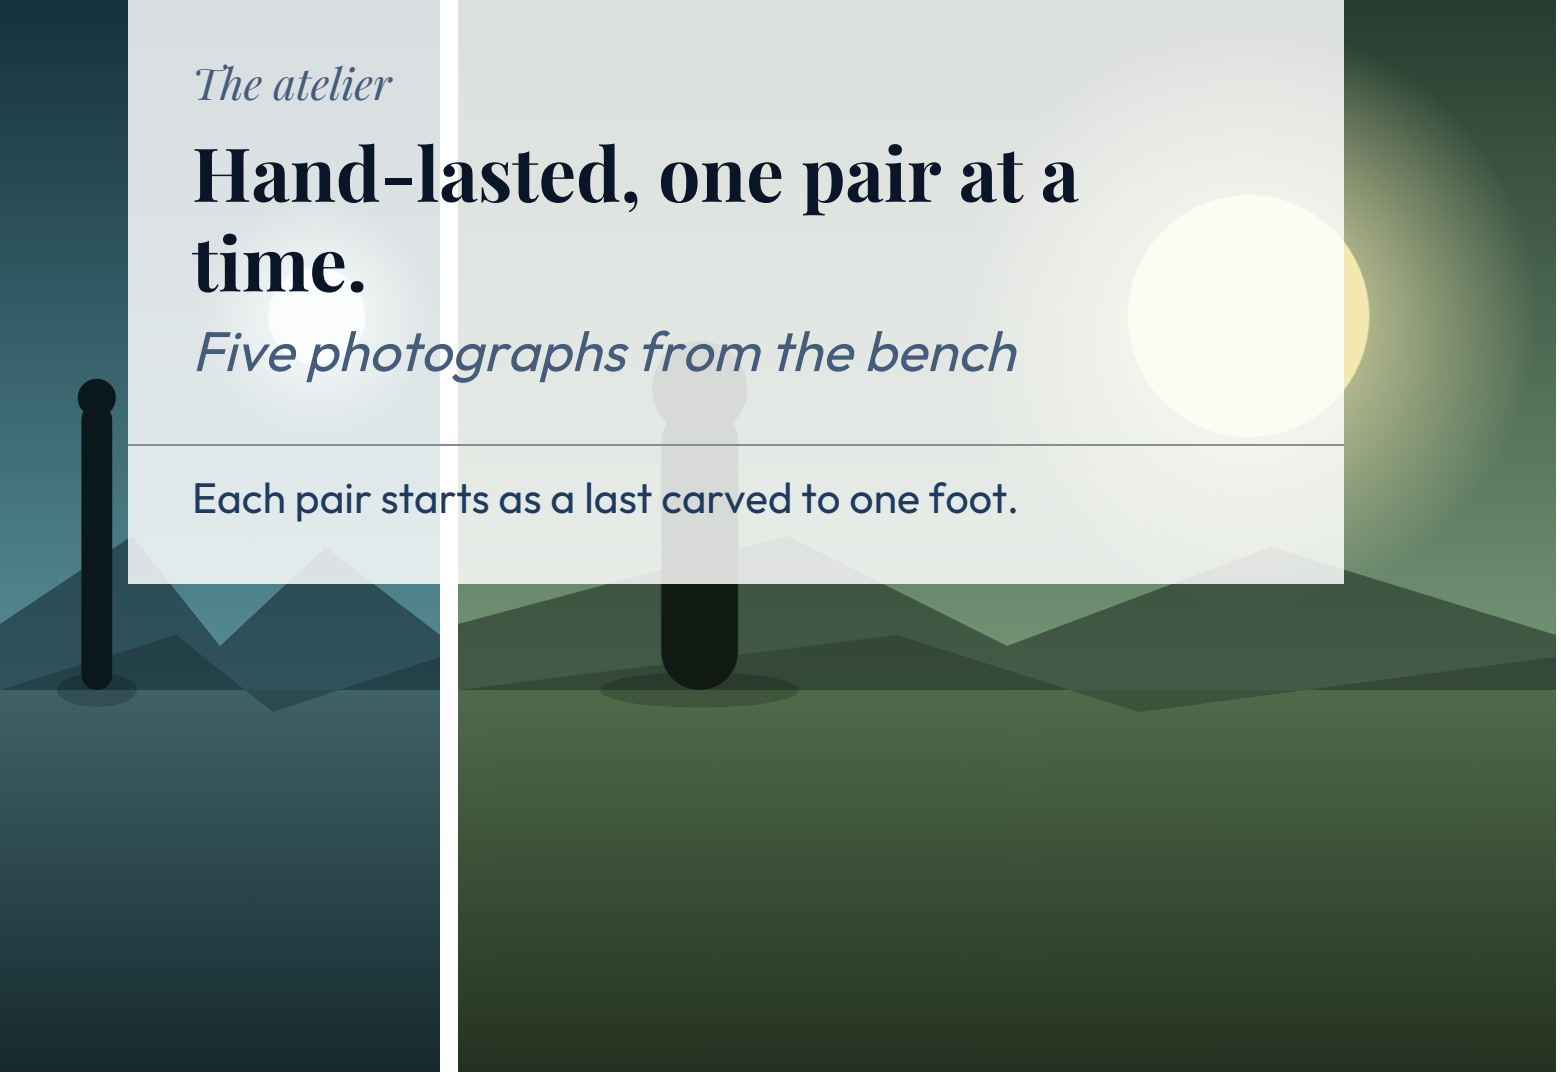

The recommendation, in one sentence.

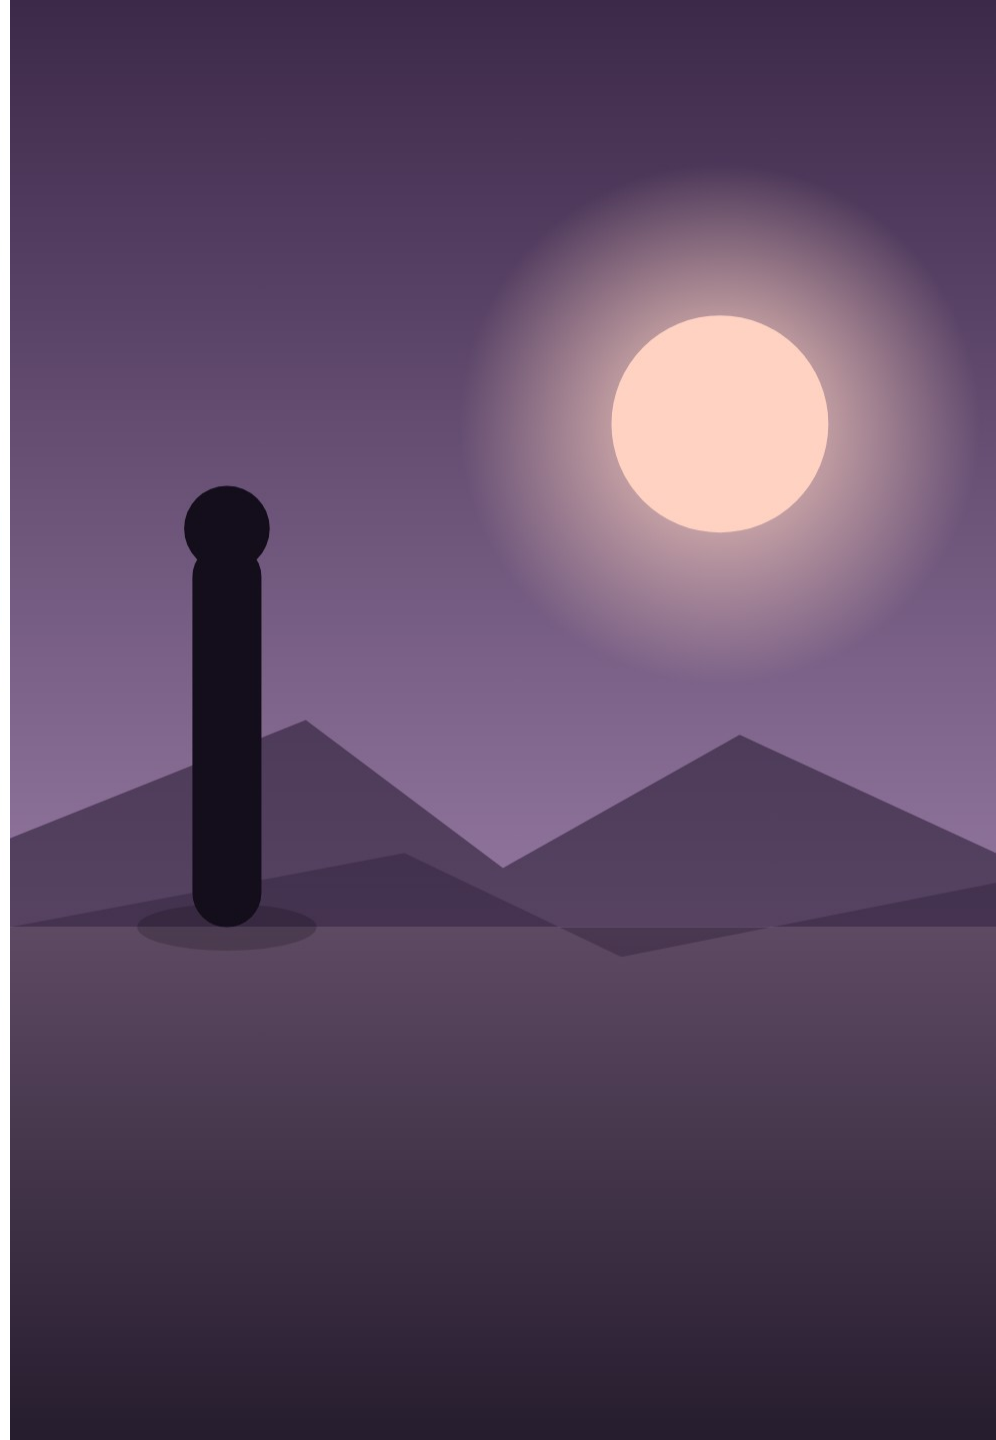

The atelier

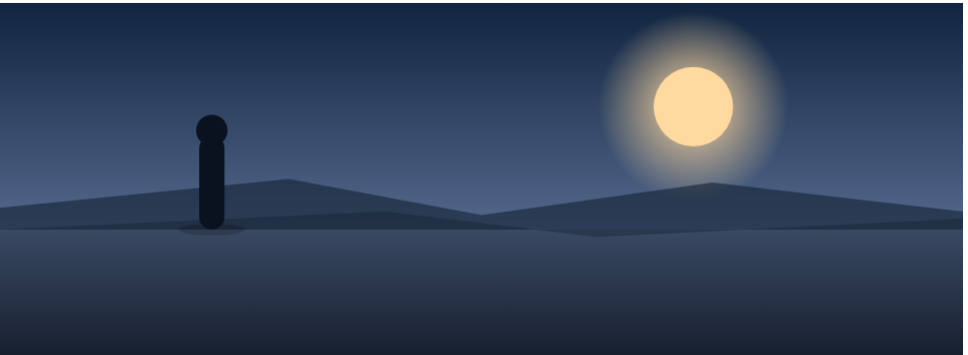

Hand-lasted, one pair at a time.

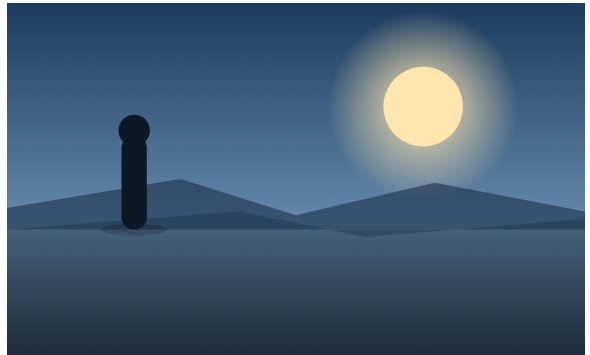

Five photographs from the bench

Each pair starts as a last carved to one foot.

Big number, claim-bleed

100%

of the frame, no safe margin.

Premise · centered statement

One sentence, centered, never nudged.

Divider · its own rail

The bar is the frame.

Closing · owns its top edge
