Imagery · video · Form conformance

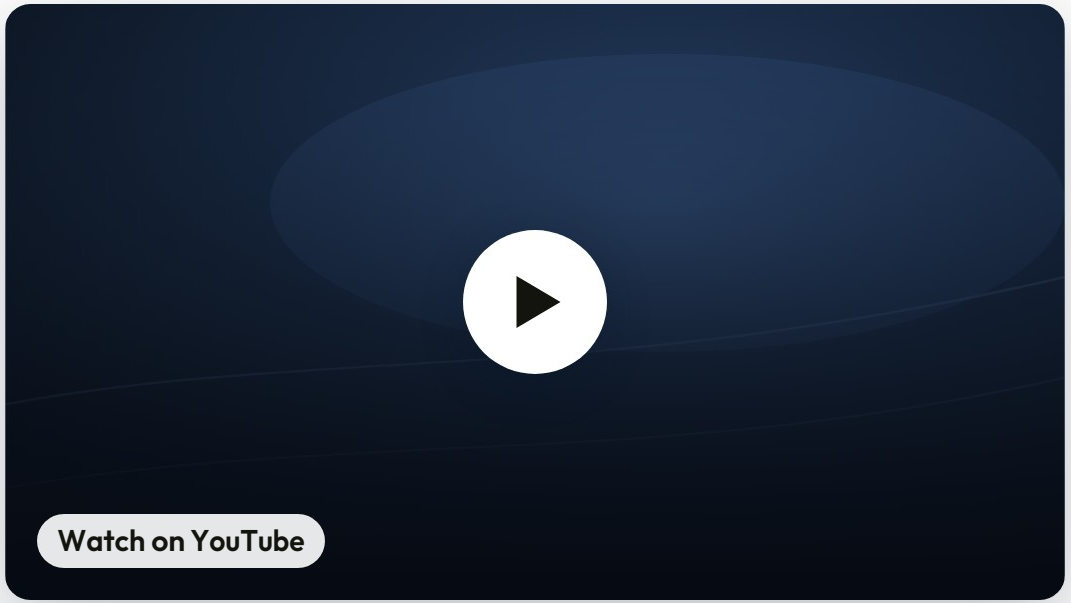

Video keeps its title in the card

Every composition now sits in the frame's stage, with its own title beside its own clip.

Companion

The claim leads, the clip proves it.

The running header and this slide's footer stay on the slide. The rebuild used to drop both.

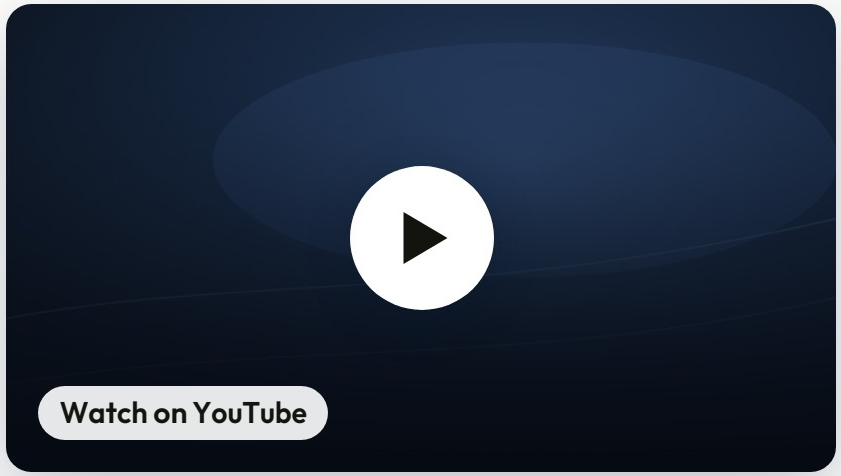

Ree A., Head of Ops at Northwind

Companion · qr

Hand the clip to the room's phones.

The QR column fits the stage cell, so the poster no longer rides up to the top edge.

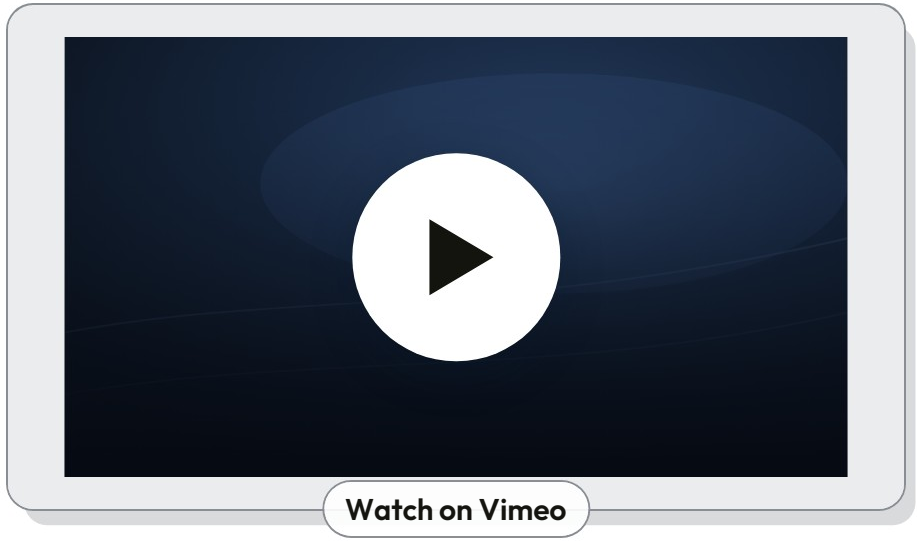

Scan to watch

The full 90-second tour

Gallery

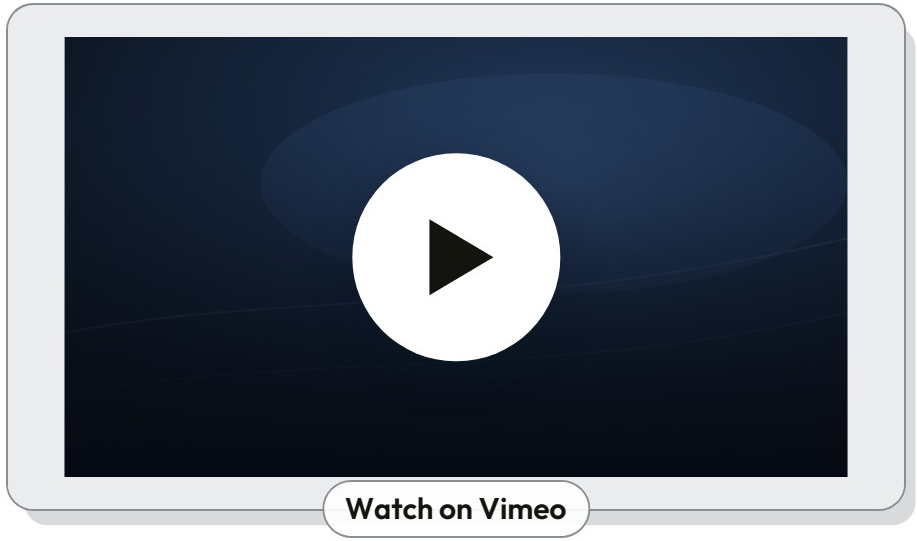

An exhibit, centered on its matte.

The masthead band no longer claims this title, so the clip is no longer inside the band.

Gallery · qr

The exhibit with its code beside the placard.

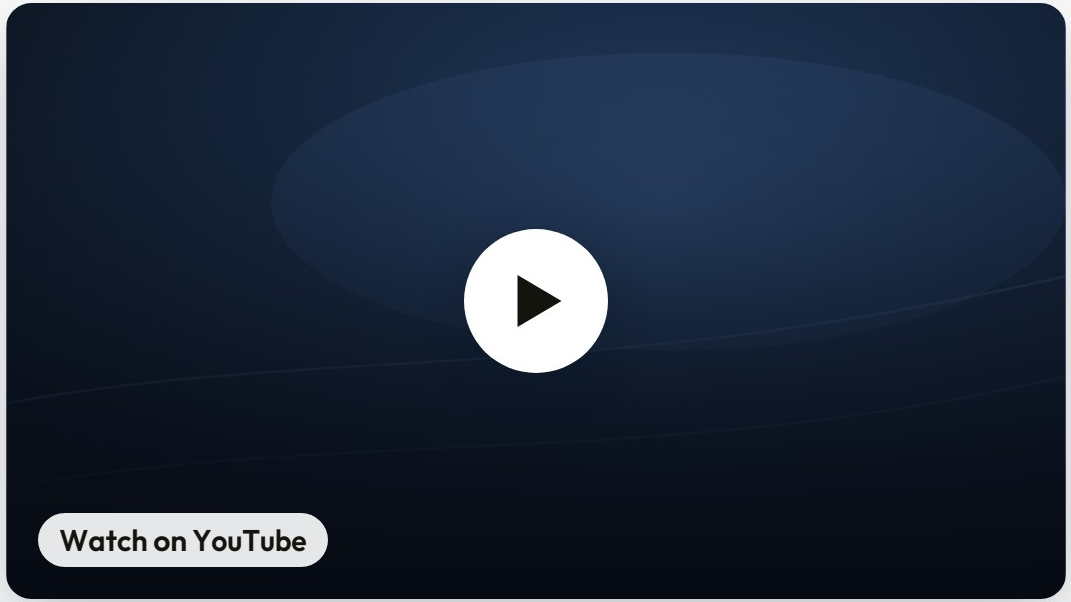

Scan to watch

The reference onboarding walkthrough, contained on its matte.

Default

A standalone clip with its framing line.

The default composition keeps the title and the framing paragraph above the poster.

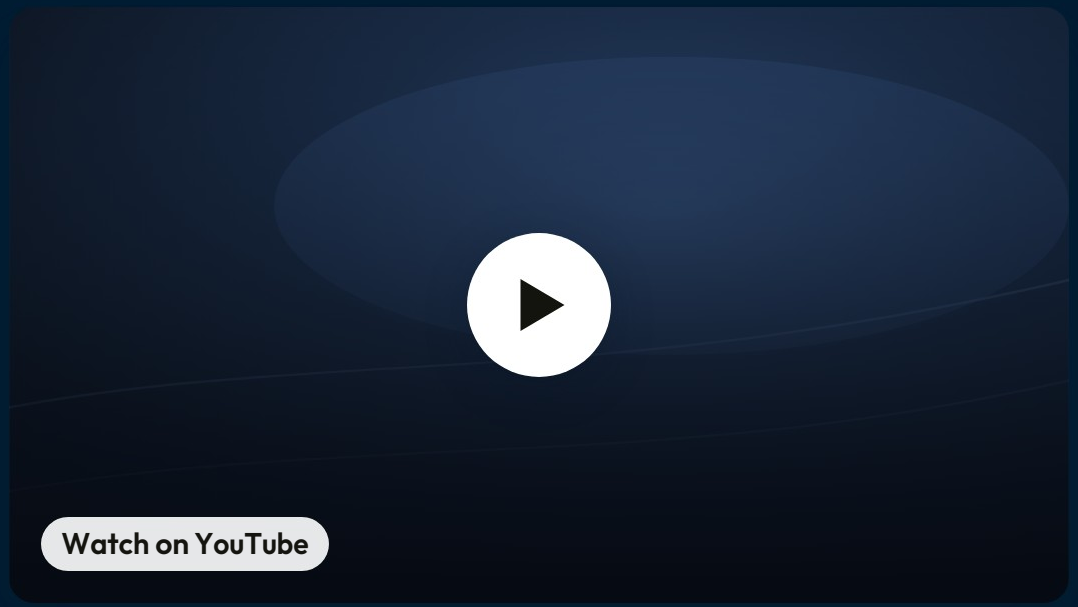

A guided walkthrough

Companion · dark

The same card, in the dark mood.

Nothing about the fix depends on the palette. The card and its cells carry through unchanged.

Ree A., Head of Ops at Northwind

Next

video is no longer an exception to Form.