Quarterly business review · Q2 2026

Cobalt Health

A strong growth quarter, one retention soft spot, and the plan to close it.

Q2 grew fast on new logos, but provider retention is the metric to watch.

Patient visits and new clinic signups both beat plan this quarter. The single number that didn't move the way we wanted is provider retention — and it's the lever that protects everything else next quarter.

- Acquisition and engagement are healthy and ahead of plan.
- Provider churn ticked up; this QBR is about why, and what we do about it.

Growth beat plan; provider retention slipped.

The provider churn is concentrated, not broad — and that tells us the cause.

Retention didn't slide evenly. Churn is clustered among providers in their first 90 days on the platform, where onboarding friction and slow first-month earnings drive early exits.

- 78% of Q2 provider churn came from cohorts under 90 days tenured.
- Providers past 90 days retained at 96% — steady with prior quarters.

Where the churn actually lives of provider churn this quarter came from providers in their first 90 days — an onboarding problem, not a platform one.

78%

The Q3 plan attacks early-tenure churn on three fronts.
