When NOT to reach for kpi.

Decorative pills without status semantics

The pills read as status, not freeform tags. Status color is assigned by each KPI's row position within the modifier — the engine never reads the pill text — so reserve them for the status vocabulary the position implies (`On plan`, `At risk`, `Breaching`, `Compliant`, `Remediating`). Arbitrary labels land a color that has nothing to do with the words.

A fifth metric — or a fourth that is not terse

Three is the allowance at a wide @size; a fourth needs everything terse — one status pill, no eyebrow, a one-line title. A fifth fits at no label length: the export clips it and names the page. Split across slides, or use `stats`, which drops the targets and pills and holds more rows.

When NOT to reach for kpi.

Reaching for attention or spotlight to carry a fifth metric

`attention` highlights the metric that needs the room; `spotlight` monumentalizes one number. Both spend most of the stage on a single tile, so past four the hierarchy they exist to create collapses — split into two slides rather than crowding the hero.

No targets, no trends

If the KPIs carry only current values, the slide is a stats row, not a kpi dashboard. Use stats and reclaim the room.
