collage

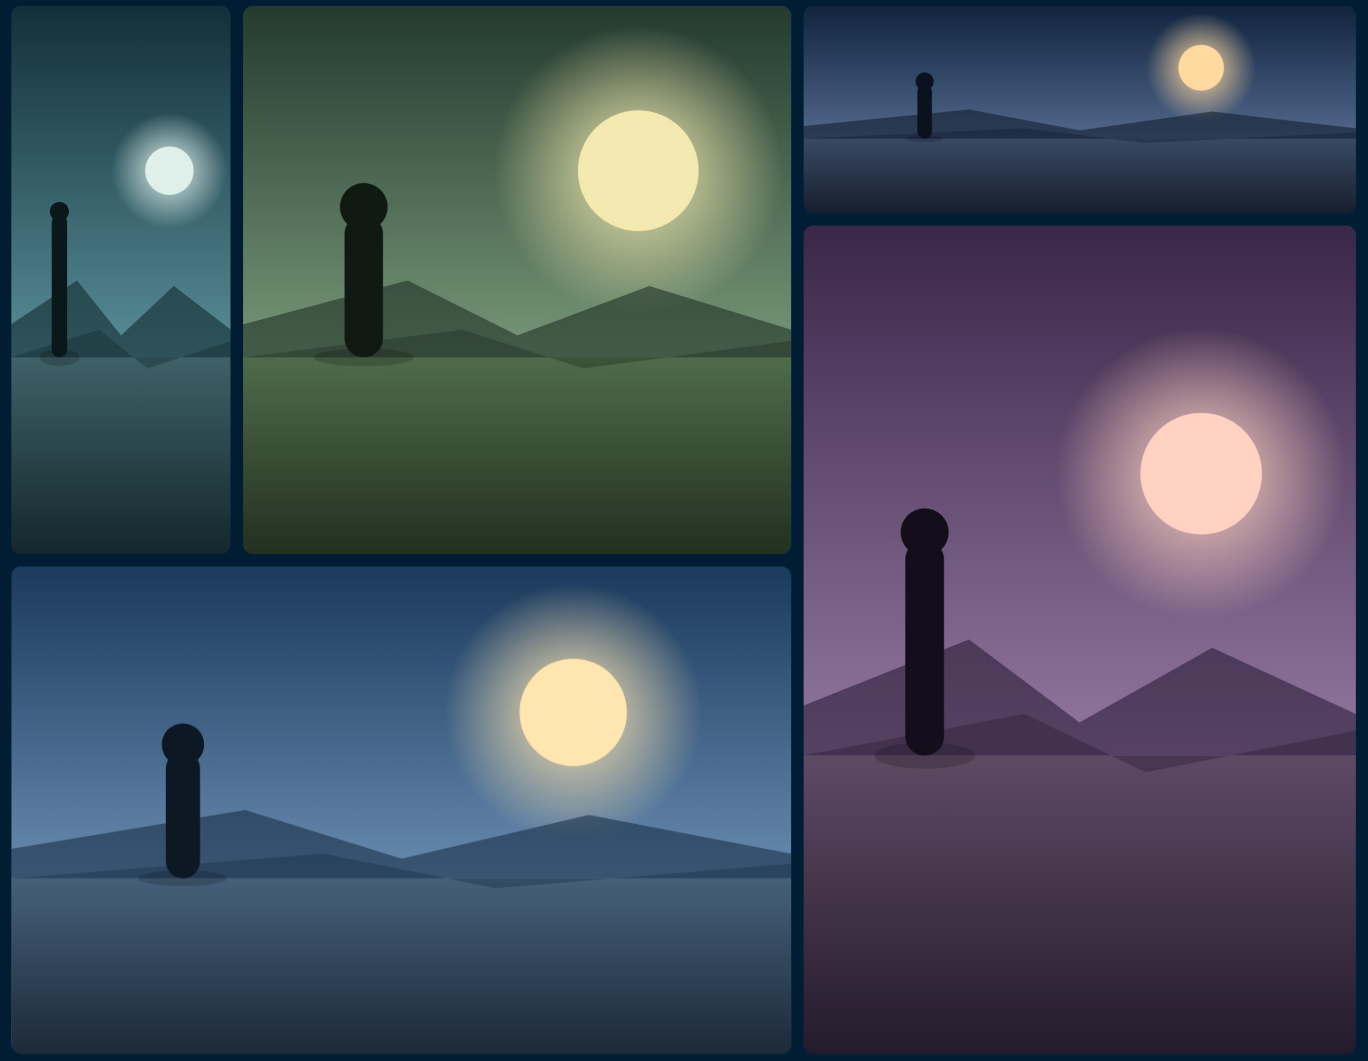

Four to six photos of any shape packed edge to edge into a mood board, with the usual eyebrow, title, subtitle and description beside them.

THE ATELIER

Hand-lasted, one pair at a time.

Five photographs from the autumn bench

Each pair starts as a last carved to one foot. Leather is cut by hand and finished over fourteen weeks.

SIX SHAPES, ONE FRAME

Tall, wide, square and a panorama share one frame.

The packer keeps every photo whole

Six is the ceiling: past it the photos get too small to read, and the layout falls back to an even grid.

Stress test · collage — Six photos of five different shapes, the ceiling.

When NOT to reach for collage.

More than six photos

Past six, tiles get too small to read from the back of the room, and the layout falls back to a plain even grid. Split the photos across two collage slides.

Photos used as decoration

There are no per-photo captions. Say what the photos show once, in the description paragraph, and let the alt text carry the rest.
