FEATURE DEMO · IMAGERY

Four to six photos, one frame.

The packer reads each photo's shape and fits them edge to edge with no cropping.

THE DEFAULT

Five shapes share one frame without a crop.

Free order: the packer picks the arrangement

Tall, wide, square, panorama and column photos pack into one flush grid. Hover a photo on a live surface to focus it.

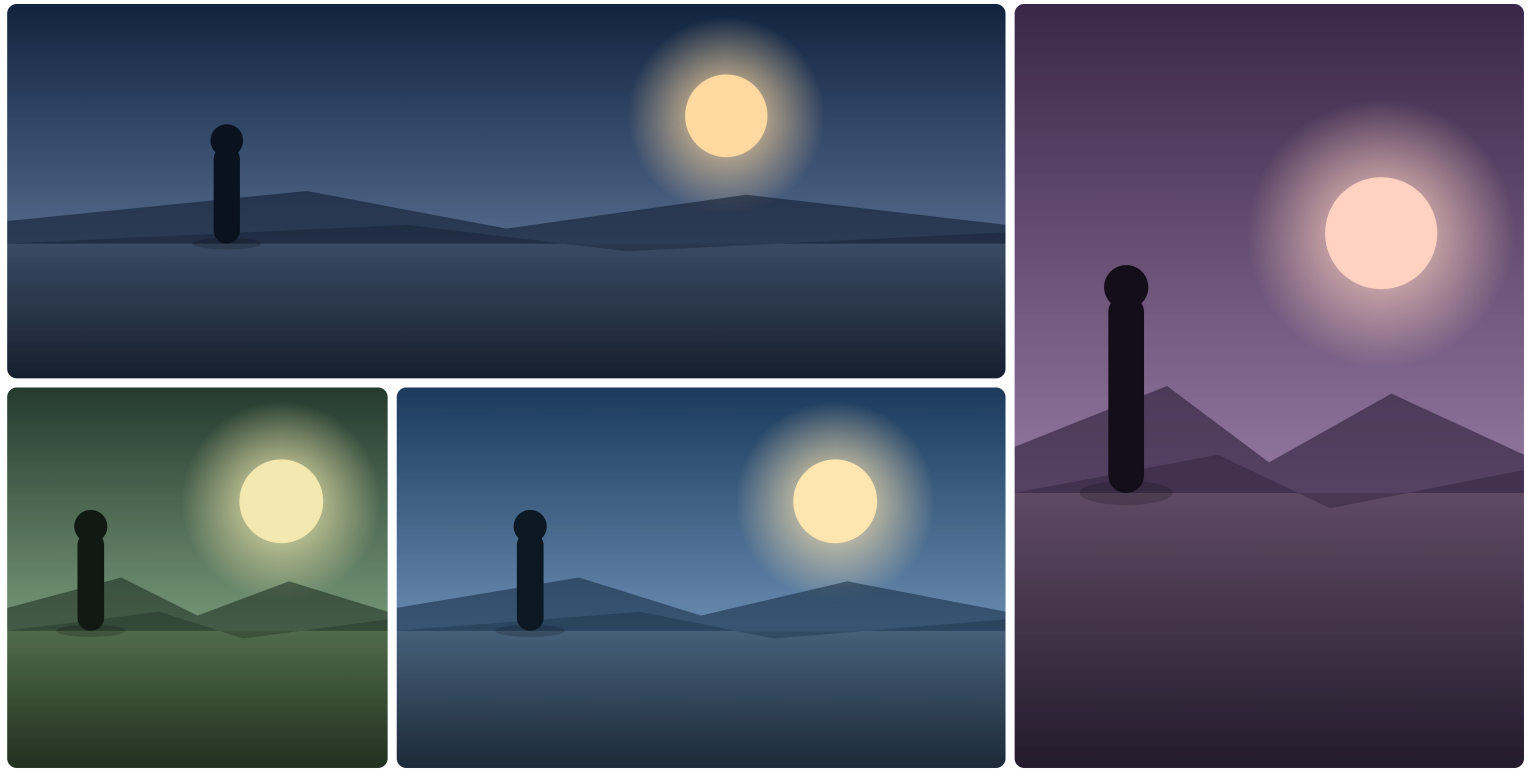

Sample photographs from lib/samples

PHOTO HINTS

`hero` makes one photo the largest tile.

A trailing code span after a photo sets its hint

The first photo is marked `hero`. A focal word such as `top` keeps that part of a photo in view, and a ratio such as `3:2` sizes a photo the build cannot measure.

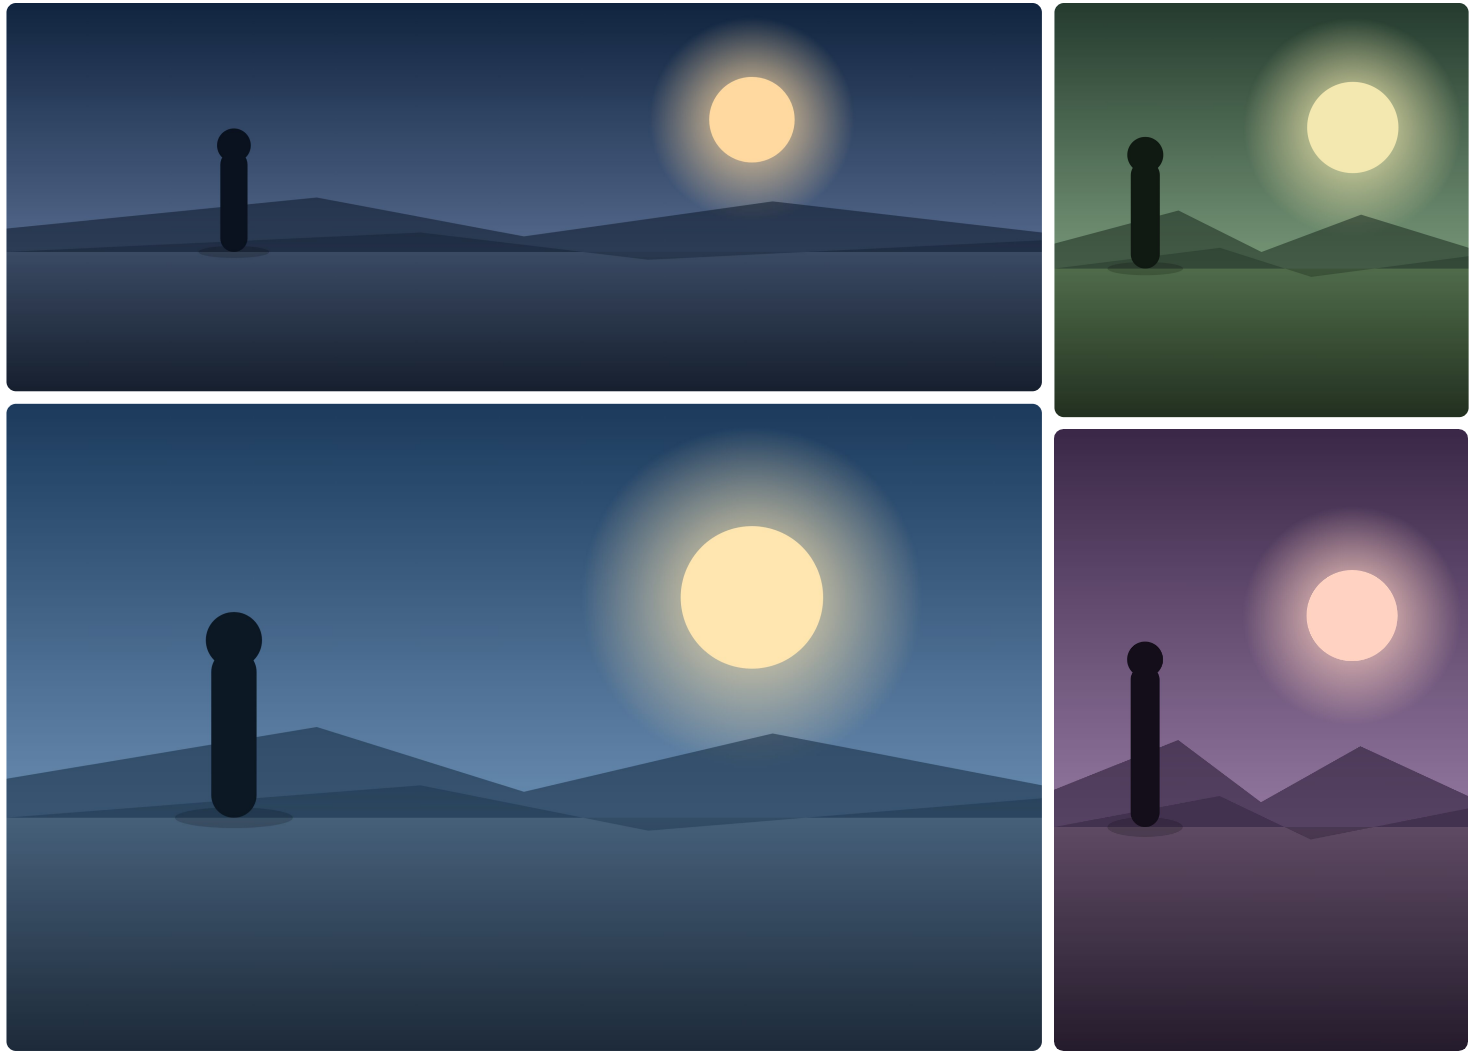

EXIF ROTATION

A sideways phone photo still packs tall.

The packer reads the rotation tag

The first photo is stored as landscape pixels with EXIF Orientation 6. The packer turns it upright when it measures, so it keeps a tall tile.

ORDERED

The photos keep the order you wrote.

Left to right, top to bottom

Use `ordered` when the sequence matters, such as a process shot from first step to last.

FILL

`fill` allows up to eight percent crop.

Closes the last of the empty space

With four photos the tightest fit can leave a margin. `fill` stretches the grid a little and lets the cover crop absorb it.

ABOVE

The text sits above the photos.

Best when the photos are wide

Use `above` when the description is short and the photos are mostly landscape.

Sample photographs from lib/samples

MIRROR

The photos on the left, the text on the right.

Flips the composition

`mirror` is the same modifier `image` uses: it changes the side without changing the layout.

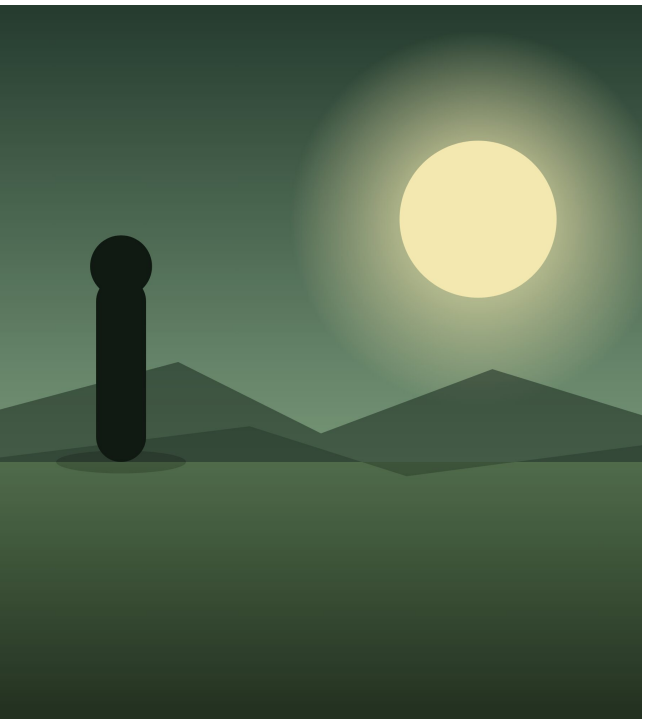

Sample photographs from lib/samples

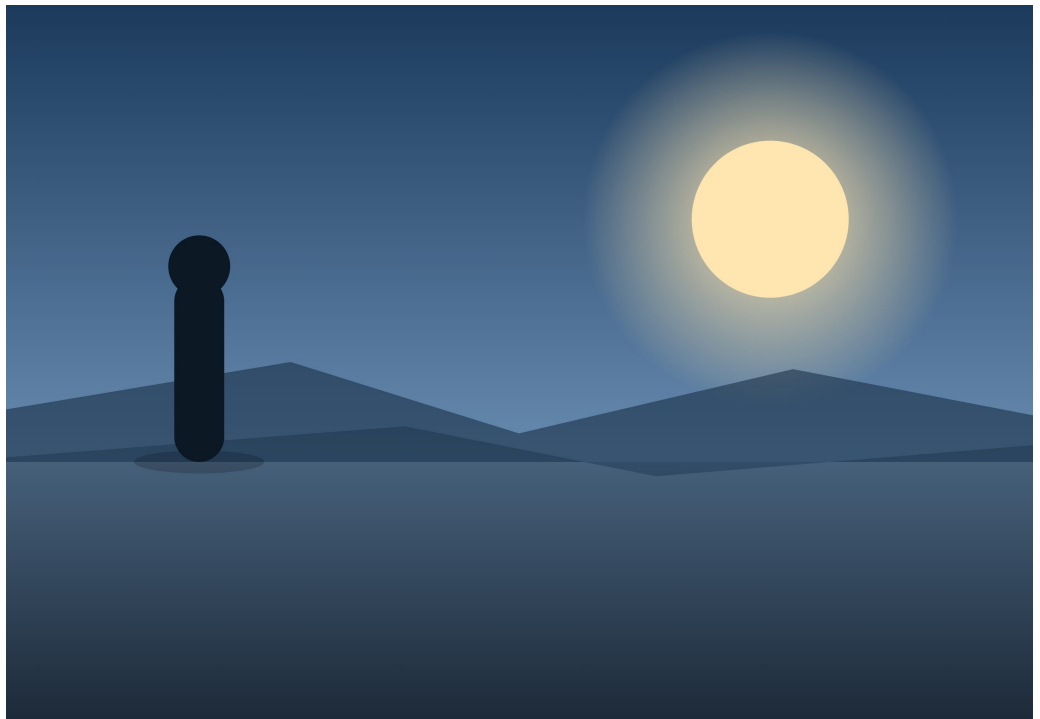

BLEED

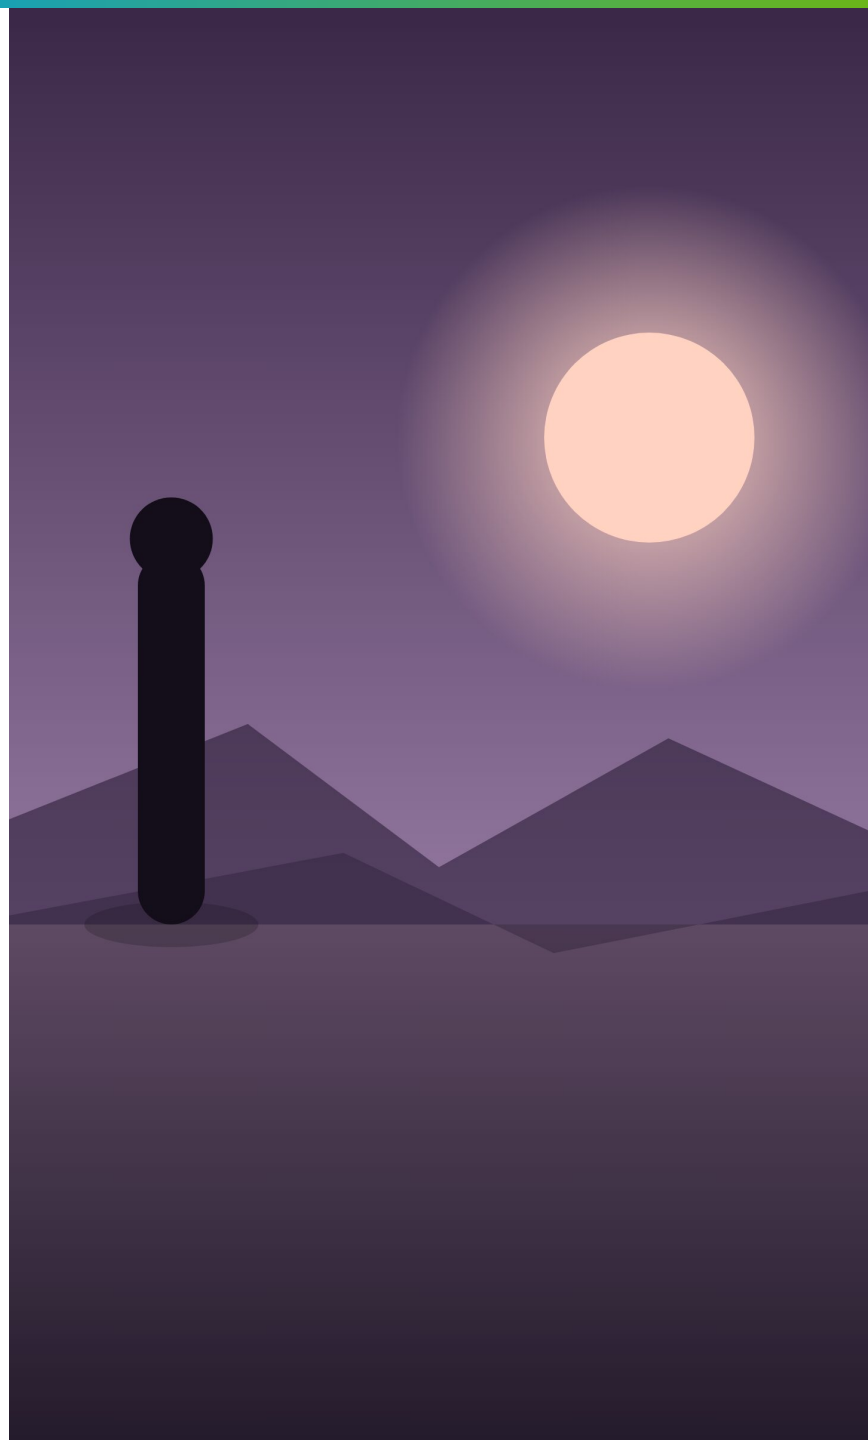

The photos run edge to edge.

The title rides a translucent card

The description sits in the same card, under the header rule, so the photos behind it stay in view.

_FOCUS

`_focus: item 3` dims the other photos in print.

The hover state, kept in the PDF

A presenter who wants the hover moment in a PDF names the photo. The count follows the order you wrote, even when the packer rearranged the picture.

