The Global South, first-class

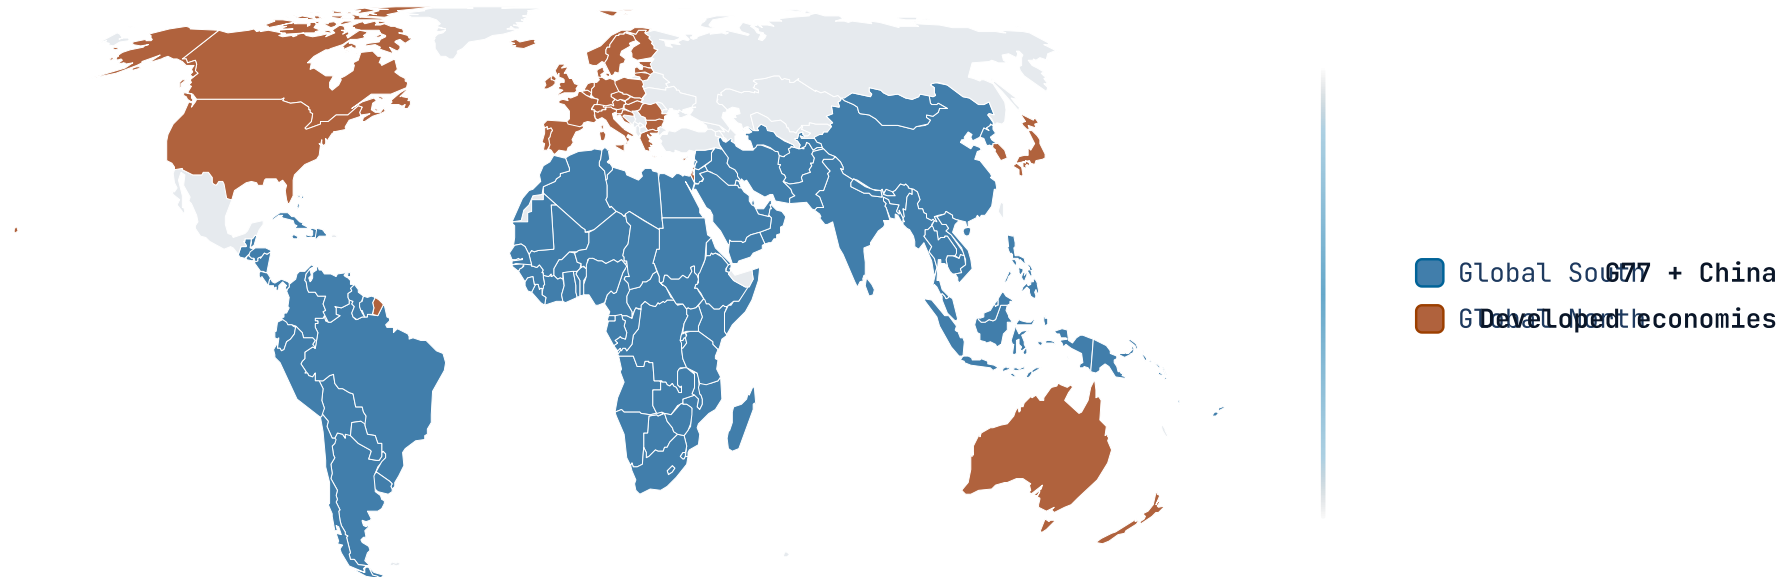

A stated, dated definition that ships with the data — pinned to the UN Group of 77 + China, dated 2025.

Omission isn't neutral.

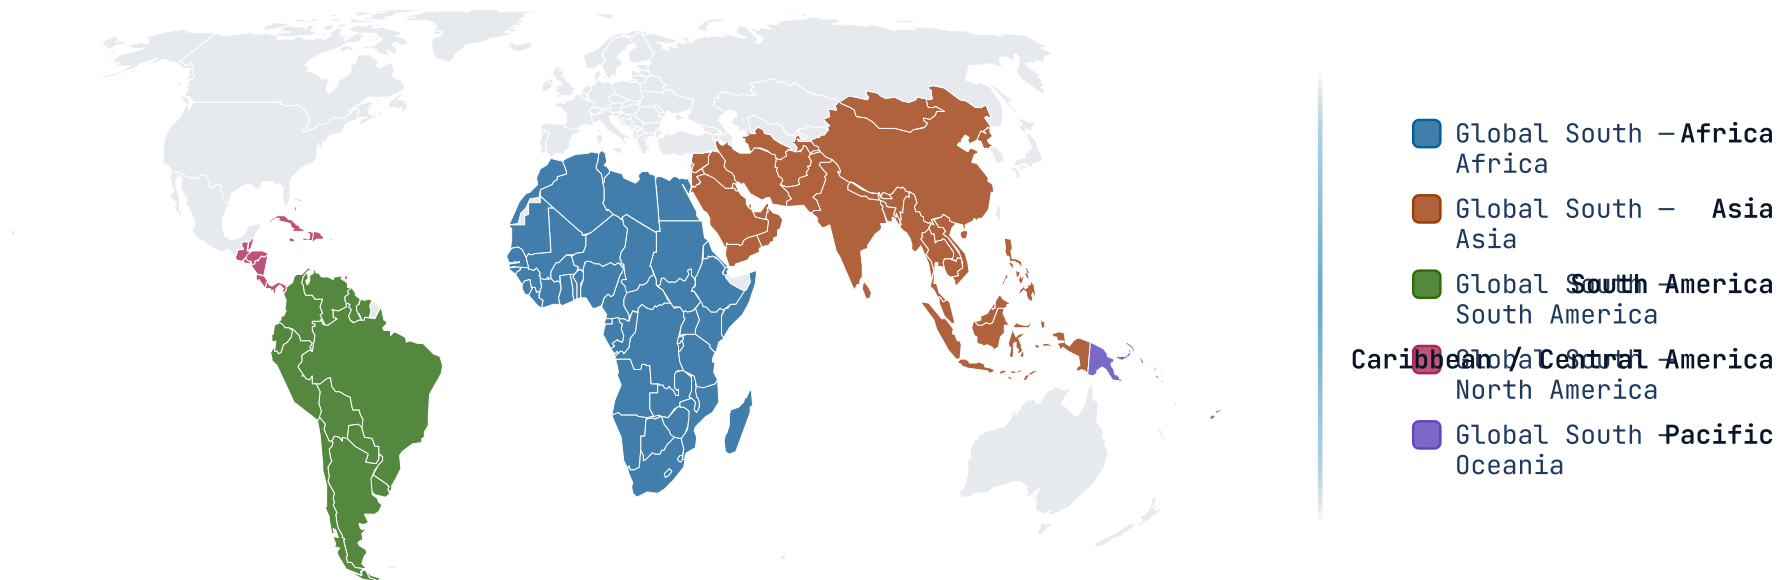

Leaving "Global South" out doesn't keep the engine impartial — it just makes every deck hand-roll an undocumented ~130-country roster, so the political call lands invisibly and inconsistently.

Shipping one sourced, dated roster is the transparent choice: the definition travels with the data, and an author can cite it.

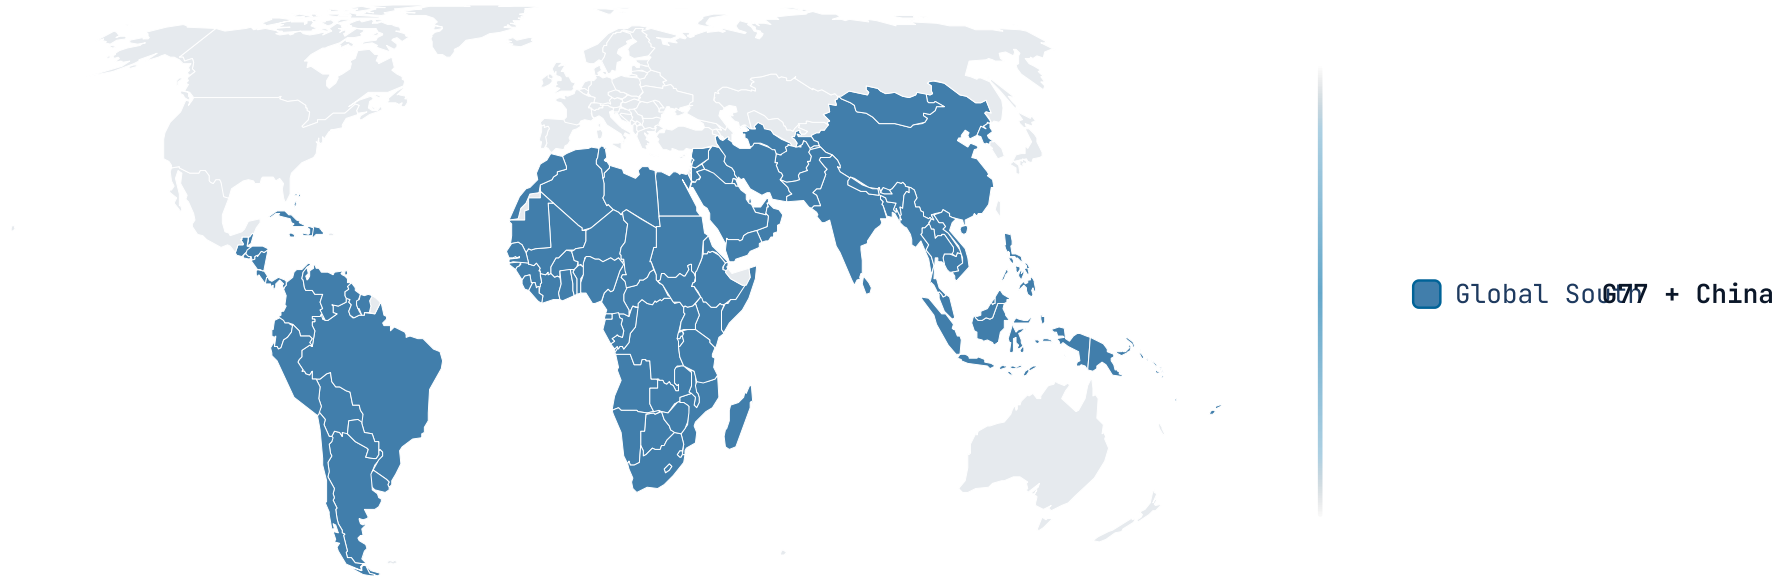

Two worlds, one stated definition.

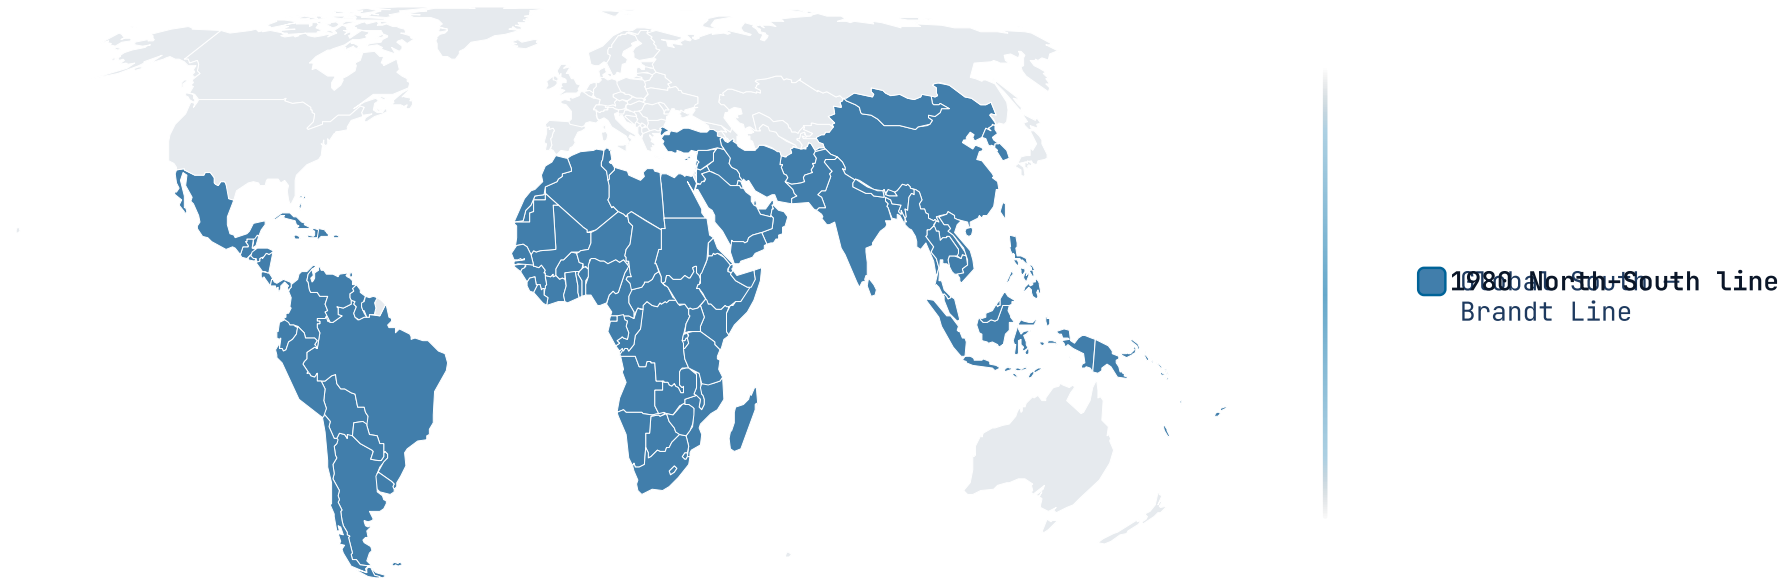

The Global South, by region.

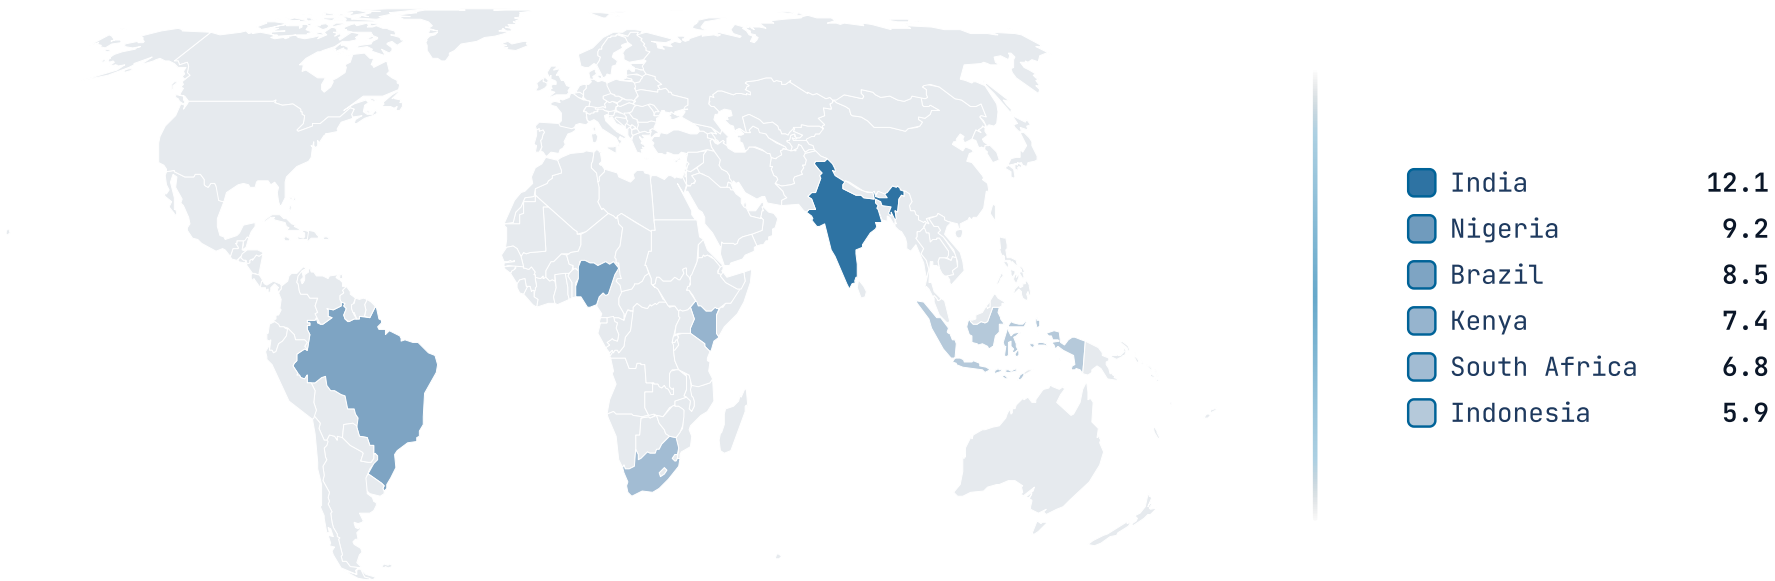

Contested term, two sourced views — #1: G77 + China.

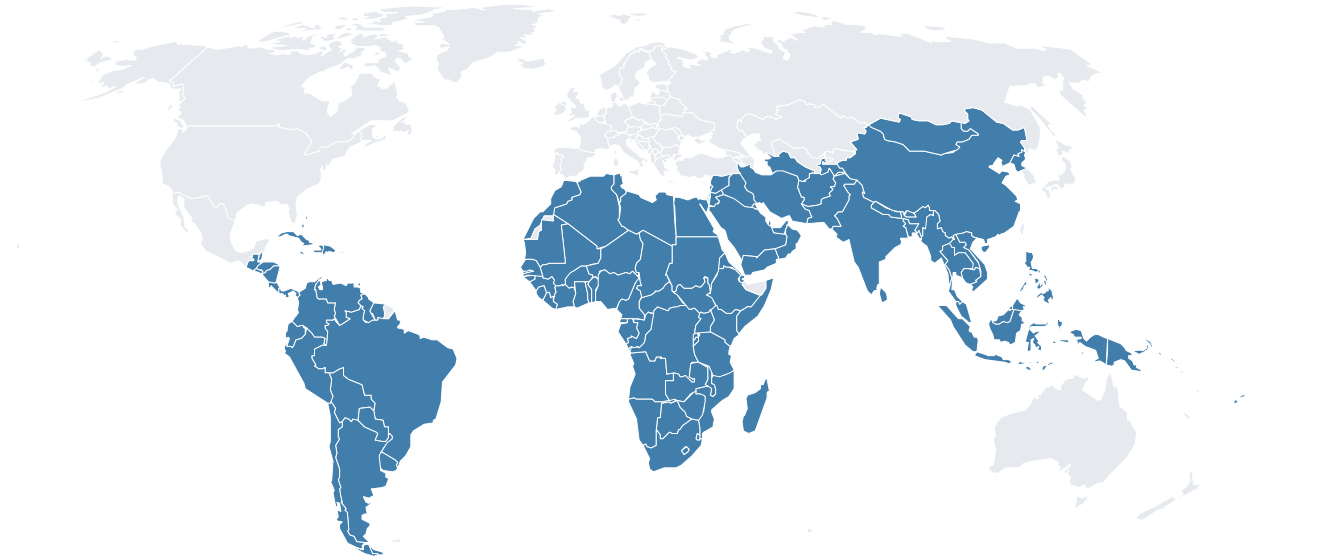

#2: the Brandt Line — Mexico, Turkey, the Koreas shift in.

Or colour the members directly.

The default projection is Equal Earth — and that's the point.

Robinson for comparison

The boundary stays provable.

*Every group ships its `source` and `as0f`.
States in neither list — Russia, the post-Soviet and Balkan economies, disputed territories — belong to no `global-` group, rather than being forced into one.
